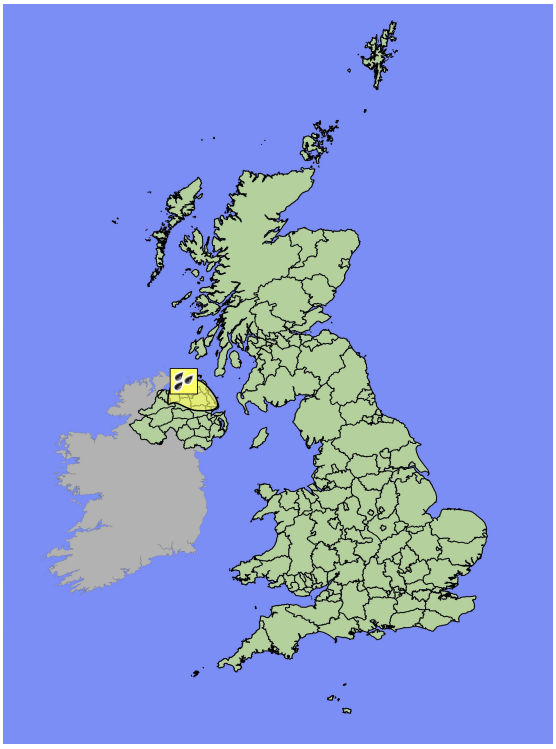
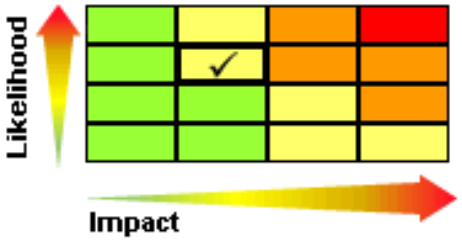
National Severe Weather Warning Service





Chief Forecasters Assessment
There remains uncertainty in the timings of the heavier pulses of rain running across N Ireland through this period. However, localised flooding is possible as this rain falls on ground already left wet from previous heavy rainfall.

The Met Office have issued a Yellow Warning of Rain

Valid from 18:00 on Sun, 17th Jul 2011 until 12:00 on Mon, 18th Jul 2011

The rain presently affecting Northern Ireland will continue through the rest of Sunday and into Monday morning with widespread accumulations of 20 to 30mm but with isolated totals of more than 40mm over the high ground.
